Your May 23rd article stated that in a California survey, homosexual men had a 90% greater risk for cancer diagnosis than normal men. Your suggestion was that better cancer screening was need for the homosexual community.

Would not a better suggestion be that homosexuals leave a life-style that is so dangerous to their health and well-being in addition to being dangerous to others as in the AIDS epidemic?

It is amazing to me that people that affirm and support homosexuals in their dangerous sexual perversions would call themselves 'friends' and we who are opposed and want to help them are called 'homophobic'. Would you affirm an alcoholic, a gambler or a prostitute in their deviations?
